

BERLINALE CO-PRODUCTION MARKET

Saturday to Wednesday, February 17–21, 2024 • 5 days of curated and informal networking
• 600 experienced international producers, financiers, sales agents, distributors, TV and fund representatives • 35 selected feature projects in advanced stages • 5 additionally selected, high-profile companies • 10 selected drama series projects • 10 books for adaptations
• 20 public funds to meet • 1500 pre-scheduled one-on-one meetings • producer-oriented conference programme • guidance and networking for selected visitor producers

As the Berlinale's networking platform for industry professionals actively working in international co-productions, the Berlinale Co-Production Market offers producers the chance to introduce their selected new feature and drama series projects. With its efficient meeting coordination and a focused talk programme, it allows even participants with a tight festival schedule to connect with the most promising pre-selected projects, to discover new financing opportunities and to exchange with like-minded professionals.

Potential co-producers and financiers can request one-on-one meetings with the selected outstanding, partly financed international feature projects. The additional Company Matching programme provides room for talks beyond single projects: participants can request meetings with 5 hand-picked international companies to speak about slates, strategies and possible future alliances.

At the Fund Meetings, producers can request 20-minute meetings with representatives from international public funds.

At the Berlinale Co-Production Market 2023, 33 selected feature projects from 25 countries (from 500 applications) as well as 10 drama series projects were presented.

600 producers and financiers from more than 400 companies around the world attended. Over 1500 pre-arranged one-on-one meetings were scheduled online, and 4 prestigious prizes were handed out.

Since the Berlinale Co-Production Market's start in 2004, over 350 films and 20 series have been made, among them Golden Bear- and Academy Award-winners and numerous festival and audience hits.

In addition to the pre-scheduled one-on-one meetings, participants can establish further contacts and network with each other. The conference programme offers Case Studies, Theme Talks, Country Sessions, Speed Matchings and networking events.

The Berlinale Co-Production Market also offers two specialised pitch and networking events: At the Co-Pro Series Pitches, participants and further buyers can discover 10 selected international drama series projects that are looking for partners.

At Books at Berlinale, the world's first rights market for literary adaptations linked to an A-list film festival, international publishers and literary agents present a selection of 10 new, forthcoming, bestselling and award-winning novels with great potential for film adaptations.

International film funds and promotion bodies can partner with us in order to present their financing and co-production opportunities, or support their upcoming producers who can start their international network in the Visitors Programme.

The Berlinale Co-Production Market is Berlinale Pro* initiative of the Berlin International Film Festival, a business division of the Kulturveranstaltungen des Bundes in Berlin GmbH (KBB), with the support of MDM Mitteldeutsche Medienförderung GmbH and the Creative Europe – MEDIA Programme of the European Union.

The Berlinale Co-Production Market is part of the European Film Market.

How to participate:

How to apply with a feature project for the Official Selection?

In September (deadline: mid-end September), producers from throughout the world who are experienced in international co-productions are invited to submit a project for the Official Selection. The selected projects will be announced in January.

Important selection criteria include: the artistic quality and the production and financing structure of the projects, their suitability for international co-productions and their potential appeal to the attending producers and financiers. Please see project requirements and details on the previous page.

How to apply for the special section Talent Project Market?

Producers in the first ten years of their career who are applying for Berlinale Talents (deadline: September 4, tbc) can submit their projects to the "Talent Project Market", a special programme at the Berlinale Co-Production Market offering additional guidance for up-and-coming producers. The requirements are different from the Official Selection.

For details and application, please see www.berlinale-talents.de

How to apply with a drama series project?

At Co-Pro Series, ten drama series projects are pitched and have one-on-one meetings with interested partners. Till early-mid October, producers can submit first-season, non-procedural, visually strong drama series or miniseries projects in development for which they are looking for co-production and financing partners. Required material: submission form, one-pager, pilot treatment, outline of the season, financing plan, moods, and script excerpts.

How to apply to participate without a project?

Experienced producers and financiers who are looking for projects to co-produce and do not wish to present their own projects can request the application link from coproductionmarket@berlinale.de in autumn, to be able to participate in the full programme and networking and request one-on-one meetings with the selected projects.

How to participate in the Visitors Programme?

International institutions can partner with us to bring a delegation to the Visitors Programme, which is targeted at producers who are not yet internationally experienced but want to get a glimpse of the market and start up their international network.

Prior, additional accreditation for the Berlin International Film Festival and/or European Film Market is required for all participants.
